Grants for Grads

Economics
Summer Fellowships
American Institute of Economic Research
Deadline: 3/31/03

The Institute offers summer room, board, at the institute, plus a free academic program and a stipend of $250 per week. Fellows have reading and written assignments and attend seminars on topics related to the scientific study of economic topics without political or other special interest bias. About a dozen fellows are chosen each year. Applicants are encouraged to visit the web site and familiarize themselves with the work and publications of the institute prior to applying. For further information, go to www.aier.org/.

Accounting
Fellowships for Minority Doctoral Students
The American Institute of Certified Public Accountants
Deadline: 4/1/03

These competitive fellowships are available to minority candidates who have been accepted into a doctoral accounting program and who show potential to become accounting educators. Applications available at http://www.aicpa.org/index.htm.

Accounting Doctoral Scholarships
KPMG Foundation
Deadline: 5/01/2003

These fellowships are offered to African Americans, Hispanic-Americans, and Native Americans who will be enrolled in a full-time accounting doctoral program in September 03. For further information, go to www.kpmgfoundation.org/.

Employment
Dissertation Award
Upjohn Institute for Employment Research
Deadline: 7/7/2003

The Institute offers an annual award for the best dissertation on employment-related issues. Awards are $2000 for first prize and up to two honorable mention awards of $750. For further information go to www.upjohninstitute.org/.
Fellows Program
Employee Benefit Research Institute
Deadline: none

This program grantees are doctoral candidates interested in doing their dissertations on economic security topics. Grantees are provided with full or partial financial support for a project. They have the opportunity to develop more detailed understanding of health and retirement issues while having access to institute staff, fellows, and sponsors. Applicants must be able to apply quantitative methods or practical skills to relevant public policy questions. For further information, go to www.ebri.org/.

Applied Economics
SSRC Fellowship in Applied Economics
Social Sciences Research Council
Deadline: early spring 2003

This fellowship should prepare students to undertake innovative empirical and/or theoretical research that addresses vital and complex economic and social issues. Each applicant must develop a 12-month plan that includes a learning experience that provides valuable know-how in formulating and conducting research, specialized skills not taught at the home institution and/or another setting; acquisition of competence in a methodology not taught in the home department or institution; course work with or research supervised by faculty in an adjacent discipline; or a short-term internship in a government or international agency, policy institute, or data collection environment. The program will help students arrange internships. For further information, go to www.ssrc.org/pae/.